

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus is provided for use in combustion system for capturing gas phase pollutants such as SO₃. In one example, the invention uses a computer model to model the combustion system. Particles are injected into the combustion system to 5 capture the gas phase pollutants. The model is used to determine the injection location, as well as the size and amount of the particles to be injected.